MAGISTRATE DENOUNCES ONE OF THE RED LIGHT PLAYS AS INDECENT AND IMMORAL

McAdoo, After Visit to "The Lure," Issues Warrants for the Arrest of Leo Shubert, Its Producer, and the Harrises, Producers of "The Fight."

Warrants were issued to-day by Chief Magistrate McAdoo for the arrest of Leo Shubert, manager of "The Lure," and William Harris and Mrs. Irene Harris, the widow of Henry B. Harris, managers of "The Fight." Shubert and the Harrises are charged with presenting indecent and immoral theatrical performances in violation of section 1140A of the Penal Law. "The Lure" has been running for nearly a month at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, in West Thirty-ninth street, and "The Fight" was put on last week at the Hudson Theatre in West Forty-fourth street.

Magistrate McAdoo saw "The Lure" on Saturday night on the invitation of Mr. Shubert and issued the warrant on his own judgment of the indecency and immorality of the piece. In deciding to issue a warrant, Magistrate McAdoo issued a statement in which he condemned "The Lure" in vigorous fashion as indecent, without any good purpose, lacking any moral issue and presented solely for the purpose of making money.

The warrants were issued at the close of a brief hearing in Mr. McAdoo's office. The Harrises and Shubert were there in response to summonses issued by the Magistrate on Saturday. In order that Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Shubert, and Max D. Steuer, counsel for Henry B. Harris estate, may witness the two plays tonight and thus be equipped to oppose the determination of the authorities to close the theatres, service of the warrants was deferred until to-morrow morning.

Lee Shubert will be arraigned before Magistrate McAdoo to-morrow at noon. The trial of the Harrises will be for 2 o'clock. As soon as the warrants are served a police man will be placed on the two plays, pending the final decision of the court. The offense charged against the theatrical managers is a misdemeanor. Magistrate McAdoo's action in the case of the Harrises was taken on evidence produced by Deputy Police Commissioner Newburger. It was not brought out in to-day's proceedings, but will be shown at the trial of the Harrises that "The Fight" was produced last season without a bawdy house scene in the second act and was a failure. This season the bawdy house scene was introduced for purposes of sensationalism, and the box office was flooded with money.

Mr. Newburger read from stenographer's notes extracts from dialogue of "The Fight" in the first and second acts. The talk was profane, obscene and taken verbatim from the vocabularies of wantons and their male associates. Mr. Newburger described in detail the second act of "The Fight," where a United States senator, who has contracted with the proprietors of a place for a young girl, unlocks a room and finds that the girl who has been supplied by the harp is his own daughter.

MISSING BABY FOUND SAFE WITH HIS NURSE

Amputee's Servant Arrested in Basement of Tenement Not Far From Employer's House.

Clara Ryan, a nurse in the family of Francis P. Amputee, of No. 26 St. Nicholas avenue, who disappeared yesterday with the Amputee's eleven-month-old son, was found this afternoon in the basement of a tenement at No. 226 Fifth avenue. Police Officer Oates' attention was called to the presence of the woman by a Mr. Perkins, owner of the house. He arrested her on a charge of intoxication. The child was uninjured but very dirty. The nurse said she had been visiting all night at the place where she was found.

SON AND HEIR BORN TO ROXBURGHES IS TRUE EUGENIC BABY

Duchess, Formerly May Goelet, Before Child's Birth Shunned Food Containing Sugar.

ARDENT WISH GRATIFIED.

For Months She Followed Advice of Dr. Schenck, Noted Vienna Specialist.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The son and heir so ardently hoped for by the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghes was born last night at their London residence, Chesterfield House, Mayfair. The Duchess is the former Miss May Goelet, daughter of the late Ogden Goelet.

The baby born to the Duchess is a boy, according to the Duke, principally because his mother ate no food containing sugar for months before his advent into the world.

In announcing the birth of an heir to-day, the Duke of Roxburghes admitted that his wife had practiced a form of eugenics and said that they both attributed the sex of the new-born infant to this.

Desiring a male heir to the dukedom, the Duchess went to Vienna in 1909 and there consulted Dr. Leopold Schenck, a noted scientist, who is a world-famous authority on embryology. He is connected with the University at Vienna and has given much study to the prenatal determination of sex.

JOY FIRES BURN FOR EUGENIC BABY BOY OF DUCHESS.

Dr. Schenck advised the Duchess and she followed his instructions. The principal thing that he told her to do, in order to insure a male child, was to avoid all food containing sugar. She did so, according to the Duke, and bore a son.

It is said Dr. Schenck staked his reputation on his prediction that the child would be a boy provided his advice was strictly followed.

The correspondent of The Evening World called at Chesterfield House this morning and was told that both the Duchess and her son are well.

The child will bear the title of Marquis of Bowmont.

The birth of an heir to the Dukedom has caused widespread joy in the border country, where the family yields immense influence. Bonfires will blaze from the hillsides to-night and all kinds of festivities are being prepared by the people of Haddingtonshire.

BROTHER WHO MAY HAVE GOT TITLE IS GLAD.

The birth of the little boy makes it certain that the title and estates of the Duke will descend to his own child. In the event he had had no son his brother, Lord Alastair Robert Innes-Ker, or one of Lord Innes-Ker's two sons, would have become Duke of Roxburghes.

The friendliest feelings exist between the Duke and his brother, and the fact that so much of his own future hinged on the sex of the expected child, the brother has been as much interested as any one in the Duke's hope for a son and to-day congratulated him heartily.

Lady Innes-Ker is herself an American, having been Miss Anna Breese, daughter of the late W. L. Breese of New York. She recently said of her sister-in-law:

"I sincerely hope the Duchess's baby will be a boy. The fortune she has can do toward keeping up the splendor of the Roxburghes estate."

The Duke of Roxburghes and Miss Goelet were married at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, New York, in 1904. Their honeymoon was spent at the Ogdens villa at Ochre Point. They have been for years leaders of English society, the Duchess being a great favorite of Queen Mary's.

The Duchess inherited $10,000,000 from her father, only a small portion of which was settled on the Duke at the time of the marriage.

JEROME GUARDED AGAINST VIOLENCE AT COURT HEARING

Coaticook Officials Ridicule Threats to Kill, but Take Extra Precautions.

THAW SAFE TILL SEPT. 15

Ottawa Authorities Intervene and Immigration Men Are Powerless.

COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 8.—W. T. Jerome, Special Deputy Attorney-General for New York in the fight to get Harry Thaw back to Mattewan Asylum, alighted from a train from Montreal at noon to-day to stand trial on the charge that he is a common gambler. Because threats had been made against his life the authorities, while professing to regard the threats as jokes, took precautions to protect Jerome from violence.

It was raining and the crowd which had gathered about the railroad station had dwindled to about forty. They watched Jerome's arrival in silence. Samuel W. Jacobs, K. C., of Montreal, special counsel to the New York lawyers, accompanied Jerome. They alighted almost directly beneath the window of Thaw's prison, but the fugitive did not show his face.

Jerome and the Canadian lawyer, accompanied by a squad of Dominion police, went at once to the Royale Hotel, where Jerome had engaged quarters when he first came to Coaticook. He chose it partly because the intense feeling here closed the doors of other hotels against him. Neither he nor Mr. Jacobs would make a statement.

There was a big crowd in town, all of them to witness Jerome's trial. By dawn to-day the countryfolk for miles around began to arrive in buggies, old-fashioned surreys, "shays" and even hayricks.

Far-angled folk who had been disappointed in catching a glimpse of Harry Thaw when he was rushed here from Sherbrooke in an automobile pre-empted seats in the courtroom as soon as they arrived, although Jerome's hearing was set for 4 o'clock. Others, however, took up points of vantage at the railroad station to watch Jerome alight from the train. Feeling here is intense, and it is in favor of Thaw and against the man who is regarded as his enemy.

Jerome's case was taken before Magistrate Mulven of Coaticook instead of by Justice of the Peace James McKee. The latter showed himself bitterly prejudiced against Jerome when he adjourned his hearing last Friday, and County Prosecutor Nicoll, who is appearing for New York's Special Deputy Attorney-General, arranged with the Sherbrooke Magistrate to come here.

THAW IS SAFE IN CANADA TILL SEPT. 15 AT LEAST.

Mr. Jerome was abandoned hope of having Thaw deported before Sept. 15, when his case will come before the court in Montreal, and will probably return to New York to-day. Saturday night he made a circuitous trip to Montreal, avoiding the district of St. Francis. After a consultation lasting twelve hours he reached the conclusion that it would be futile to attempt to get Thaw back to New York before the writ of habeas corpus should be adjudicated.

Mr. Jerome's decision to return to New York was made after E. Blake Robertson, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration, received word from Ottawa that the Government would hold Thaw for his appearance on Monday, Sept. 15, before the Appellate Division of the Court of King's Bench on the writ of habeas corpus.

Then Thaw will begin a fight to upset the Canadian immigration laws, which were framed when the Liberal party was in office. The first attack will be made upon the particular section of the law which provides that only Canadians have the right to plead to the courts against deportation decisions.

This will be carried, The lawyers say, to the Privy Council in England if necessary. Then Thaw will fight against the article of the law making it compulsory to deport persons who have been adjudged insane within five years.

GIRL'S HEAD SEVERED WHILE SHE WAS ALIVE; CLUE TO SLAYER FOUND

Autopsy Conducted by Three Physicians Shows That Fiendish Murderer Did Not Wait for Death Before Beginning Dismemberment of His Victim's Body.

NO MARK OF A BULLET OR ANY SIGN OF POISON.

Retailer Who Sold Six Pillow Cases Similar to One Wrapped About Part of Body Has Been Located and He Knows Purchasers' Names

That the victim of the Hudson River mystery was dismembered while life was still in her body was the unassailable finding of three doctors, who to-day performed an autopsy upon the two segments of a young woman's body found in the river on Friday and yesterday. Death was ascribed to the shock caused by the severance of her limbs and head.

Because of the absence of the murdered girl's head—now being dragged for over three miles of the river's course along the Jersey shore—the physicians could only guess that the victim of murderous fiends had been stunned either by a blow on the head or by inhaling some anaesthetic and that while she lay in a coma the work of dismemberment was done. No mark of knife or bullet appeared on the torso—there was no trace of poison in the stomach.

NEW YORK DOCTOR AT AUTOPSY.

County Physician George W. King and his assistant, Dr. Arthur J. Haskins, were assisted in the autopsy by Coroner's Physician Dr. Timothy J. Lehane of Manhattan. Deacon Murphy, representing the office of District Attorney Whitman, and Detective McDonald of the Hudson County Prosecutor's office were the lay witnesses of the autopsy. The cause of death was ascribed by the physicians as follows:

"Death due to hemorrhage caused by the severance of the femoral artery, abdominal aorta, carotid and brachial arteries."

The severing of these arteries represents the cuts made by the instruments of the murderer in preparing to dispose of his victim's body.

The doctors also discovered that the victim had recently been expecting motherhood but that by artificial means the working of nature had been defeated. There was no evidence of a criminal operation.

A great step toward the solution of the mystery was made late this afternoon when the officials of the Mohawk and Hudson Feather Company of Newark, N. J., who, it was learned, manufactured the pillow cases in which the two fragments of the body were stuffed, gave to the Hudson County authorities the name of the retailer who had bought six pillow cases of the peculiar size of those used by the murderer.

This retailer, so it was stated by one of the Newark manufacturers this afternoon, has been able to give to the authorities the names and addresses of the customers who had purchased these pillow cases from him.

LOW CASES.

The manufacturers were aided in their search through sales records by the fact that the pillow cases were of an unusual size. The retailer was able through this peculiarity to remember to whom he had sold them.

Immediate work on these new clues aided by Headquarters men in Manhattan.

The discovery of the body of a still born infant on the shore a few hundred feet away from the spot where the lower portion of the woman's body was found yesterday was not overlooked by the authorities, eager to seize upon any scrap that seems evidence pointing to the solution of the mystery.

It was said by Detective Charles A. Hudson County Prosecutor and Jerome of the Washington Post.
